

Lucy Wolfe is a Columbus native and a graduate of Columbus School for Girls. She earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Photography and Cinema from the Ohio State University in 1986. As a licensed realtor with the Columbus Board of Realtors since 2007, Lucy is interested in old Columbus homes and neighborhoods. In 2010, she collaborated with the Old Oaks Civic Association to create The Chic Harley Memorial Garden at 687-689 S, Champion Ave. in the Old Oaks Historic District. Two United Way Neighborhood Partnership Grants were awarded to help fund the project. The garden is to be dedicated on Chic Harley's birthday, September 15, 2012, in conjunction with the 200 Columbus celebration. Working with the Livingston Avenue Area Commission Economic Development Committee, Lucy helped organize the two area commissions and the four civic groups in the Near South Side to plan the Streetcar District concept. She is a current board member of the Columbus Historical Society, and has co-authored A Historical Guidebook to Old Columbus with Bob Hunter of the Columbus Dispatch to be published in 2012.
