Craig A. Bohning, PE Vice President

Commercial and Residential Site Development

Craig A. Bohning directs the design of site civil engineering for single family and multi-family residential, healthcare, office, and educational developments. He oversees the sizing and determines the placement of detention/retention basins, designs parking lot layouts and site grading and coordinates with governmental agencies, public utilities, contractors, architects and owners from the inception of a project through the construction phase.

Under his direction, Craig's design team sets alignment and profiles, and assesses drainage needs and sizing for storm sewers, culverts, and bridges, often in concert with the design of adjacent development sites. They review geotechnical data and design pavement sections and subgrade treatments.

Highway and Drainage Design

Craig sets alignment and profile, and assesses drainage needs and sizing for storm sewers, culverts, and bridges, often in concert with the design of adjacent development sites. He reviews geotechnical data and designs pavement sections and subgrade treatments. Craig directs and coordinates right-of-way planning and property ownership including courthouse research and legal descriptions for acquisition of fee title, easements and work agreements.
