Experience

As a Planner for MSI Design, Jason brings a range of project experience to the firm, including skills in long range planning, municipal planning, community revitalization efforts, and land use research. A project manager for both continuing municipal planning services as well as urban planning projects, his community planning and consensus-building skills are complemented by his urban research and mapping abilities.

Jason plays a significant role in a wide variety of projects at MSI Design, interacting with the landscape architecture studio as well as leading planning project teams. His experience in working with various disciplines and in numerous community-based planning environments enables Jason to coordinate complex planning processes and build strong consensus-based solutions.

Jason previously worked in the Neighborhood Development Division of the City of Columbus as well as for several community planning organizations. His experience involved numerous neighborhood-based planning efforts, in addition to extensive mapping and data representation.
