

Shown above is a Gravity Thickener at Jackson Pike which is used to remove water from primary waste before the waste goes to the storage tanks. The Center Pier that the red arrow is pointing to conveys the primary waste into the tank. The Center Pier is also the structural support for the gear box, the scrapers, and the walkway.