

Biography of Bruce Miller

Bruce Miller moved to Columbus, Ohio in 1999 to accept a position as a nurse manager at The Ohio State University. Born and raised in rural Upstate New York, Bruce started his career as a firefighter/paramedic. While working in that field he graduated with his associates degree in nursing from Hudson Valley Community College and his bachelors degree in nursing from the State University of New York Empire State College. After moving to Ohio he also obtained a masters degree in nursing from The Ohio State University while working as an emergency room and critical care nurse. Bruce has been very active as a healthcare educator and has won awards from the American Red Cross in N.Y. and on the national level as Educator of the Year, and he is an award winning speaker and published author in the field of HIV/AIDS prevention and education.

After retiring from nursing Bruce attended the University of Cincinnati and graduated with a 4.0 GPA and obtained a degree in real estate and also completed the Columbus State Community College Real Estate/Construction management program and went on to a career in real estate/project management with a large commercial business. He then entered into the field of residential real estate and specialized in difficult residential properties/foreclosure prevention and advocating for clients with unique circumstances. He was a member of the diversity and inclusion committee of the Board of Realtors.

Bruce has been active in every community he has lived in in Ohio, including in Columbus. He believes in bettering the community for every resident/business and has always worked as a tireless advocate. Bruce is a member of the Far South Columbus Block Watch, the Scioto Southland Civic Association and the Marion Franklin Civic Association. He is also a member of the Episcopal Church. In his free time Bruce enjoys travel, music, working on his house and mentoring at risk youth.
