Columbus City Council established the Columbus Families Together Fund (CFTF) in 2017 to protect immigrant and refugee families in Central Ohio from the long-term financial and emotional devastation that results from aggressive deportation. The CFTF will provide $285,000 total over three years to organizations that meet specified legal services needs within the immigrant and refugee communities, with $185,000 allocated by the City of Columbus and an additional $100,000 in private philanthropic dollars pledged by the Vera Institute of Justice and directly allocated by them.

Columbus City Council solicited proposals from nonprofit legal service providers in the Central Ohio area to receive grants totaling $27,500 towards legal services that help keep families together in the Central Ohio immigrant and refugee communities.

Five grant applications were received for the Additional Legal Services Grant fund. A review committee of four immigration experts and one member of city staff reviewed the grant applications and recommended that Columbus City Council award $17,500 to the Council on American-Islamic Relations Ohio.

Fiscal Impact: Funding is available within the Public Safety Initiatives subfund.

Emergency action is requested in order to immediately provide resources to the Council on American-Islamic Relations Ohio to avoid any disruption in legal services for immigrant and refugee families.
