This ordinance authorizes a supplemental appropriation within the Franklin County Municipal Court for the purpose of funding positions related to probation services in the Domestic Violence Unit.

In 2016, the Franklin County Municipal Court (FCMC) made a commitment to become an evidence-based organization that follows the Risk, Needs and Responsivity Principle (RNR). The RNR principle tells the court who to target, what to target and to appropriately match offenders to programming as to avoid a one-size-fits-all approach.

The Department of Probation Services (DOPS) began a thorough review of the research and practices and began preparing for this paradigm shift. Part of the transition preparations included having the Domestic Violence Unit (DVU) conduct a thorough review of evidence based practices as they relate to the domestic violence population. The goal of this review was to identify evidence based, domestic violence specific risk tool that incorporates a differentiated supervision and programming response.

The DVU identified the Domestic Violence Risk Needs Assessment (DVRNA) as the most effective tool to address the needs of this population. In January of 2017, the DVU, as well as the current batterer intervention program (BIP) providers were trained in the administration and application of the DVRNA.

The DOPS remains committed and enthused about the potential impact of its evidence-based approaches to the supervision of DV offenders. Research has demonstrated that evidence-based treatment approach can yield a sizeable impact on recidivism (up to 30% in some studies); however, this paradigm shift has presented additional demands and challenges for the unit.

In order to provide the most effective supervision for this population and engage in risk-reduction activities in a timely manner, it is necessary to reduce the time that each officer spends on the assessment function each week. Also, in order to provide the appropriate level of supervision to the highest risk defendants and to allow for an appropriately sized caseload, an additional, exclusively high risk supervision officer is necessary.

The additional high risk officer will work closely with the department's victim assistance program (PAVED), to ensure a high- level of communication and collaboration between the PAVED and DV Units, thus resulting in an increased level of support for the victims of the highest risk offenders.

With these additional resources, the FCMC DVU will be better positioned to demonstrate and deliver its evidence-based, risk reduction efforts. The FCMC will continue to gather and analyze important data to demonstrate the impact that the program is having on the community and the DV offenders.

Fiscal Impact: Funding is available within the Public Safety Initiatives subfund.

Emergency action is requested in order to immediately provide the Franklin County Municipal Court with the resources necessary to integrate the additional personnel in the Domestic Violence Unit.
